THE HISTORY AND POLITICAL EDUCATION FACILITATION MENU 2025

BY

MR TURYAMWIJUKA AMBROSE BRAZIO

TEL: 0772-607 981.

1: UNDERSTANDING THE PRE-COLONIAL HISTORY OF E.A	P'DS
1. Finding out about our past	10
2. The origin of man	16
3. Migration and settlement in East Africa since 1000AD	08
4. Culture and ethnic groups in East Africa	12
5. State formation in East Africa	14
6. Religion in East Africa	10
7. Local and External trade contacts with East Africa Communities	18
TOTAL	88

2: UNDERSTANDING THE COLONIAL HISTORY OF AFRICA	P'DS
1. Scramble, partition and colonization of East Africa	10
2. Response to the establishment of colonial rule in East Africa	10
3. The colonial administrative systems in East Africa	12
4. The colonial economy in East Africa	12
5. World Wars and their impact in East Africa	14
6. Struggle for independence in East Africa	14
7. Key personalities in the history of East Africa before independence	18
8. Lessons from liberation struggles in South Africa	19

TOTAL	109
ELEMENT OF CONSTRUCT 3: THE POST COLONIAL HISTORY OF E.A	P'DS
1. Post-independence socio-economic challenges in East Africa	14
2. Civil society and non-government organizations	12
3. Changing land tenure systems in East Africa	10
4. The structure of government in Uganda	15
5. Local government systems in Uganda	16
6. Constitutionalism in Uganda	15
7. Democracy and leadership in Uganda	15
8. The United Nations Organization and its impact on Uganda	16
9. The evolution of human rights in Uganda	16
10. the post-independence liberation struggles in Uganda	18
11. Patriotism in Uganda	16
12. Key contributors to nation building in the post-colonial period	17
13. Lessons from world economic transformatiions	18
14. Pan-africanism political and economic federation in Africa	21
15. Neo-colonialism in East Africa	15
16. Globalisation	14
17. Peace, conflicts resolution in East Africa	17
TOTAL	265

COMPOSITION OF THE PAPER

The paper is made of two sections A and B and its allocated 2 hours and 15 minutes. These items are taken from all the three elements of construct as shown below.

#	ELEMENT OF CONSTRUCT	NO. OF ITEMS	COMMENT
1.	Understanding the pre-colonial history of East Africa	One item is set	Compulsory
2.	Understanding of the colonial history of Africa	One item is set	Compulsory
3.	Understanding of the post-colonial history of East Africa	Two items are set	The candidate responds to only one item.

SPECIFICATIONS AND CHARACTERISTICS OF A GOOD TEST ITEM.

- They should show the duration of the paper within which a learner is to respond to the item.
- Should prescribe the alignment of the item to the elements of construct.
- Should elicit responses like extended and restricted responses from the learner.

SCENARIO BASED ITEMS.

NOTE: All items in the CBC are scenario based. This is the new mode of setting. Teachers are advised to expose learners to various scenario items as possible which must be taken from all elements of construct and set as per requirements of UNEB and NCDC. The learners are also advised to make research and practice as many scenario items as possible.

PRINCIPLES AND ATTRIBUTES OF A GOOD SCENARIO BASED ITEM.

- It should have a description of the problem embedded in it.
- It should be meaningful, elicit responses which are valid and reliable.
- Should have relevant information like dates and images where necessary.
- Should be realistic and authentic describing real life situation.
- Should be relevant to the topics in the syllabus book.
- Should be taken from the three elements of construct.
- Should be clear and easy for learners to understand.

ASSESSMENT AND SCORING.

In order to write an excellent easy in the CBC, the learner must do the following;

- Read with an open mind and properly understand the scenario and the requirement of 'The task.
- The presentation must be done in a clear and orderly manner and in paragraph form.
- Should not outline the work, all the information must be detailed.

- Should not give tittles, headings or underline the key points, all must be presented coherently in paragraph form.
- The essay should be divided into three parts i.e., the introduction, the body and the conclusion (IBC).

THE INTRODUCTION

The introduction should contain the following;

- Identification of the problem in the scenario.
- Definition of the key historical concepts.
- Setting or giving a stand where necessary.

BODY OF THE ESSAY.

- All ideas should be presented in paragraph form and not numbered.
- Each paragraph must have all the three aspects as shown below.

i. HK: historical knowledge/idea/point.

ii. HT: historical thinking/ understanding/ comprehension or explanation of the given idea with relevant examples.

iii. HA: historical application/relating the point or idea to the real life situation.

CONCLUSION.

The learner should give a valid conclusion depending on how he or she has attempted the item and even depending on the nature of the scenario. The learner should not outline any idea in the conclusion as treated as repetition.

SCORING GRIDE

This has four score areas/levels and the ward of scores varies depending on the nature of the item. The levels are; Excellent, Advanced, Satisfactory and Irrelevant.

REQUIREMENTS OR ATTRIBUTES FOR DIFFERENT SCORE LEVELS.

LEVEL OF SCORE	REQUIREMENTS OR ATTRIBUTES.
Excellent	• The candidate clearly identifies the problem in the scenario. • Clearly explains the key historical concepts in the scenario. • Relates the concepts to the scenario. • Explains the requirements of the task correctly and coherently. • Back the explanation with relevant examples. • Relates the explanation to the scenario (APPLICATION) • The essay should have IBC. HK 10+, HT 8+, HA 4+. • Give valid conclusion.
Advanced	• Identifies the problem in the scenario with minor errors • Defines key historical concepts in the scenario. • Attempts to explain the historical concepts in the scenario with minor misconceptions. • Attempts to relate the idea to the scenario. • Concludes with minor errors. • The essay should have, HK 8+, HT 6+, HA 0-3.

Satisfactory	• No identification of the problem. • No definition of key concepts. • Outlines historical ideas. • Few or no examples. • No relevant conclusion. • The essay should have at least HK 1+, HT 0, HA 0
Irrelevant	• Irrelevant information or nothing has been presented for scoring.

SAMPLE ITEM AND RESPONSE WITH HK, HT AND HA.

In late 1870s, Uganda witnessed the wave many foreigners who came in different groups and these people were invited by one of the prominent king in Uganda. The first group arrived at the king's palace on 30th June 1877 and the second on 17th February 1879 and these groups were led by Alexander MacKay and Fr. Simeon Lourdel respectively.

TASK

As the student of history and political education, write an essay showing how these groups of foreigners contributed to the modern development of Uganda and East Africa in general.

LIKELY RESPONSES

The groups of foreigners that came to East Africa and Uganda in particular around 1877 to 1890 were called the Christian missionaries.

These Christian missionaries came in two groups, the first one that arrived on 30th June were the church missionary's society (C.M. S) under the leadership of Alexander Mackay and the second was the Roman Catholic missionaries under Fr. Simeon Lourdel (Mapera) on 1 7th February 1879 (INTRO).

These people contributed to the development modern East Africa in the following ways.

- Missionaries introduced missionary education (HK) that produced pioneer nationalists who greatly contributed to the liberation struggles of their countries for example Dr. Apollo Milton Obote (HT). This education laid the foundation for the current intellectual development in the country (HA).

- They improved on the farming methods (HK) by introducing the use of fertilizers, crop rotation which improved on agricultural yields leading to high production in east Africa (HT). These methods are still being applied today in the agricultural sector (HA).

- These people also led to the introduction of new crops in East Africa and Uganda in particular (HK) for example coffee, cotton, pyrethrum (HT). These crops have remained the foreign exchange earner to date (HA).

- They introduced legitimate trade (HK) which became the basis of the economy by providing the alternative means of livelihood to people of East Africa (HT). This trade eventually gave rise to the current trade that the country is participating in today (HA).

- Missionaries built feeder roads and bridges (HK) which eased transport and communication in East Africa (HT). The road network we are using today has its root from the Christian missionaries (HA).

- They created employment opportunities to the people (HK) for example people started working as clerks and teachers (HT). This system has continued up to date (HA).

- They introduced Christianity in East Africa (HK) and preached the gospel which converted people into Christianity (HT). This faith is still relevant in Uganda today (HA).

- Christian missionaries built hospitals (HK) for example Mengo and Rubaga which provided better medical services to the people of East Africa (HT). These hospitals are still of great importance today thus leading to development (HA).

- They also built schools which improved literacy in East Africa (HK) for example Namilyango college, Gayaza high school, Ngora high school, St Mary's kisubi (HT) and these schools have remained powerful centers of learning up to date (HA).

- The mission centers they opened like Kampala and Tabora (HK) later became big towns' thus promoting urbanization (HT) which enhances development (HA).
- They introduced new architecture and the construction of houses (HK) using burnt bricks which improved living conditions of the people of East Africa (HT). This kind of building style has dominated the whole world today (HA).
- They introduced new languages in East Africa (HK) like English,
- French and Latin and of which English is now a medium of communication in East Africa and a National language (HT). This has eased communication in east Africa up to date (HA).

In conclusion therefore, the coming of Christian missionaries contributed much to the development of Uganda both socially, economically and politically as presented above.

SEMINAR ITEMS 7th JUNE 2025.

TOPIC: United Nation's Organization and Lessons from world economic transformation.

Competence (1)

a. Explain the role of United Nations in promoting human rights in Uganda.

Competence (2)

b. Explain the lesson Uganda can learn from South Korea, Japan and Singapore in economic transformation.

ITEM

Uganda is a member of the United Nations significant role in promoting humanitarian rights and social economic development, from which Uganda has benefited . However ,some Ugandans are skeptical about the effectiveness of the UN. They point to issues like human rights violation, famine, and economic challenges that persist in Uganda, arguing that these problems take center stage. These critics advice leaders to draw from counties like South Korea and Singapore and question the value of United Nation membership if significant development and human rights progress are to be achieved -This debate has sparked mixed reactions among local leaders in our community who are grappling with how to address the issue. As respected member of the community you have been approached by local leaders to provide insight into the role of UN and development experiences of Asian counties in Addressing similar challenges.

TASK

a. With specific examples, explain how the above organ has benefited Uganda?

LIKELY RESPONSES

- The problem identified in the scenario is lack of knowledge/ doubt by some Ugandans about the role of the UN in promoting human rights and social economic development similar to other counties.

- The United Nations Organization was an international body formed after world war II on 24th October 1945 as a peace keeping body with the major aims of promoting international peace, economic development, human rights protection among others.it began with 51 members and increased to 193 today.

The UN has benefited Uganda through the following way;

- UN has provided training and resources to human rights defenders in Uganda, enabling them to promote and protect human rights. For example, the UN supported the Uganda Human Rights Commission in monitoring and investigating human rights abuses.

- The UN has advocated for women's rights in Uganda, supporting initiatives to reduce gender-based violence and promote women's empowerment. For example, the UN has supported the development of the Uganda National Gender Policy.

- UN through UNICEF has worked to protect children's rights in Uganda, including initiatives to prevent child labor and exploitation. For example, UNICEF supported programs to withdraw children from exploitative labor and provide them with education and protection.
- The UN through UNDP has supported poverty reduction initiatives in Uganda, including programs to improve livelihoods and promote economic growth. For example, the UNDP supported the Uganda government's Poverty Eradication Action Plan.
- The UN through FAO has supported Uganda's agricultural sector, improving crop yields and promoting sustainable agricultural practices. For example, the FAO provided training and resources to farmers on conservation agriculture.
- The UN has supported infrastructure development in Uganda, including initiatives to improve roads and bridges. For example, the UN supported the construction of the Karuma Bridge, which improved transportation links between northern and southern Uganda.
- The UN has worked to protect civilians in conflict-affected areas of Uganda, providing humanitarian assistance and promoting protection. For example, the UN supported the protection of civilians in the Lord’s Resistance Army (LRA) affected areas.

- The UN through UNHCR provided protection and assistance to refugees in Uganda, including those from South Sudan and the Democratic Republic of Congo. For example, the UNHCR supported the settlement of refugees in West Nile and provided them with shelter, food, and protection.
- The UN has provided humanitarian response to emergencies in Uganda, including natural disasters and conflicts. For example, the UN supported the response to the 2010 floods in Uganda, providing emergency assistance to affected communities.
- The UN through WFP has supported food security programs in Uganda including initiatives to improve agricultural productivity and reduce hunger. For example, the WFP supported the Uganda government's Food Security Initiatives.
- The UN through UNICEF has supported nutrition initiatives in Uganda, promoting good nutrition practices and reducing malnutrition. For example, UNICEF supported programs to promote breastfeeding and provide nutritional support to vulnerable children.
- The UN through FAO has promoted climate-resilient agriculture practices in Uganda, supporting farmers to adapt to climate change. For example, the FAO provided training and resources to farmers on climate-smart agriculture techniques.
- The UN has supported human rights education in Uganda, promoting awareness and understanding of human rights among communities. For example, the UN provided training and resources to schools and community organizations on human rights education.

- The UN has advocated for the rights of people with disabilities in Uganda, promoting inclusivity and accessibility. For example, the UN supported the development of the development other National Policy on Disability and the implementation of the Persons with Disability Act.

- The UN has supported minority groups in Uganda, promoting their rights and inclusion. For example, the UN worked with minority groups to promote their participation in decision-making processes and ensure their voices were heard.

- The UN has supported small and medium enterprises (SMEs) in Uganda, providing training and resources to entrepreneurs. For example, the UNDP supported the development of business incubators to promote entrepreneurship and job creation.

- The UN has promoted financial inclusion in Uganda, supporting initiatives to increase access to financial services. For example, the UN supported the development of mobile money services, increasing access to financial services for vulnerable populations.

- The UN has supported sustainable tourism initiatives in Uganda, promoting eco-tourism and cultural tourism. For example, the UN supported the development of tourism infrastructure in national parks, promoting sustainable tourism practices.

- The UN has worked to protect humanitarian workers in Uganda, promoting safety md security. For example, the UN provided training and resources to humanitarian workers on safety and security protocols.

- The UN bas supported humanitarian response efforts in Uganda, providing emergency assistance to affected communities. For example, the UN supported the response to the 2016-2017 drought in Uganda, providing food and nutrition assistance to vulnerable populations.

- The UN has promoted humanitarian principles in Uganda, including humanity, neutrality, and impartiality. For example, the UN provided training and resources to humanitarian organizations on humanitarian principles and

In conclusion, the above discussed arguments demonstrate the significant impact of the UN's work in Uganda in promoting human rights, social economic development, humanitarian rights, and fighting famine, b. Explain to the people how significant development can be achieved in Uganda.

LIKELY RESPONSES

The problem identified in the scenario is lack of Knowledge by the Ugandans on how to attain significant development.

Development refers to the process of improving the economic social and human wellbeing of individuals, communities and societies.

Asian countries such as Singapore, japan and South Korea achieved significant development using a number of measures or strategies which Uganda can borrow to attain the same status as explained below;

- Singapore's export-led growth strategy can be a model for Uganda to diversify its exports and increase economic growth. Uganda can focus on exporting high-value crops like coffee, tea, and flowers. This can help Uganda attain significant development due to the foreign revenue got.
- South Korea's investment in infrastructure, such as roads, bridges, and ports, has contributed to its economic growth. Uganda can prioritize infrastructure development to improve connectivity and facilitate trade. With this Uganda will be able to achieve significant development.
- Singapore's special economic zones (SEZs) have attracted foreign investment and promoted economic growth, Uganda can establish SEZs to attract investment and promote industrialization.
- South Korea's emphasis on education and skills development has contributed to its human development. Uganda can prioritize education and skills development to improve the productivity of its workforce, thus producing goods and services that have high demand on the global market.

- Singapore's healthcare system is known for its efficiency and effectiveness. Uganda can learn from Singapore's experience in healthcare delivery and prioritize investments in healthcare infrastructure and personnel. So as to have a healthy productive work force that can compete globally.
- South Korea's social protection programs, such as pension schemes and unemployment benefits, have helped to reduce poverty and inequality. Uganda can establish similar programs to protect vulnerable populations. Like the NSSF which has been put in place to provide social protection especially for those who work in the private sector.
- Singapore's institutional reforms have promoted good governance and economic growth. Uganda can prioritize institutional reforms to improve governance and reduce corruption so as to have enough funds to invest and support sectors like education, health, and infrastructure so as to boast development.
- South Korea's experience with public-private partnerships (PPPs) can be a model for Uganda to leverage private sector investment in infrastructure and public services.
- Transparency and Accountability: Singapore's emphasis on transparency and accountability has contributed to its good governance. Uganda can prioritize transparency and accountability in governance to improve dust and confidence in institutions. This will help attain development.
- South Korea's agricultural modernization has increased productivity and improved food security, Uganda can prioritize agricultural modernization to improve crop yields and reduce poverty in rural areas. This will help bring about sustainable living thus development.

- Singapore's experience with rural development programs can be a model for Uganda to promote rural development and reduce poverty.
- Uganda can develop value chains for key crops like coffee, tea, and cotton, adding value to agricultural products and increasing incomes for farmers.
- South Korea's investment in technology has driven its economic growth and innovation Uganda can prioritize investment in technology to promote innovation and entrepreneurship so as to attain development.
- Singapore’s digital economy has promoted economic growth and innovation. Uganda can prioritize the development of its digital economy to improve access to services and promote entrepreneurship.
- South Korea's innovation hubs have promoted entrepreneurship and innovation. Uganda can establish innovation hubs to promote entrepreneurship arid innovation.
- Singapore’s tourism industry has contributed to its economic growth. Uganda can prioritize tourism development to promote economic growth and create jobs.
- South Korea’s experience with regional integration can be a model for Uganda to promote regional cooperation and economic integration as these will widen her market which will bring about development.

- Singapore's experience with disaster risk reduction can be a model for Uganda to promote disaster risk reduction and management. This can help limit loses during the disaster time which will help boast development.

In conclusion, Uganda can learn from the experiences of Asian counties Singapore and South Korea. By prioritizing economic development, human development, governance, and infrastructure development. With these, Uganda can achieve significant development progress.

TOPIC. East African community and Neocolonialism.

Competence

a. Explain the achievement of East African community

b. Explain the various manifestation of neocolonialism in East Africa.

ITEM

Uganda is a member of the East African community, which recently held a meeting at one of the conference hall in your town to discuss matters concerning its performance. During the meeting, one of the members critiqued the community for signing trade deals that favor foreign companies over local ones. The member claimed that this trend is a modern form of Neo-colonialism, where regional cooperation serves external interest rather than addressing regional issues. His criticism was met with mixed reactions from the delegates regarding whether the East African community is truly serving the African development or allowing neocolonial interests to take their course in the region. The criticism sparked confusion among the members, and the chairperson of the meeting asked him to withdraw his critique.

Having been present at the meeting, you have now been tasked with educating the members about the East African community and neo-colonialism.

TASK

a. Prepare an educative document that will enable the member to withdraw his critique.

LIKELY RESPONSES

The problem identified in the scenario is lack of knowledge /confusion/doubt among some delegates on whether the East African Community is serving to benefit the East Africans or not.

The East African Community (EAC) is a regional intergovernmental organization that comprises of eight Parmer states: Burundi, Democratic Republic of Congo, Kenya, Rwanda, Somalia, South Sudan, Tanzania, and Uganda. Its headquarters is located in Arusha, Tanzania. The EAC aims to foster economic cooperation and integration among its member states through various initiatives.

The following aspects can help the member among the delegates withdraw his critique.

- The EAC has established a customs union, which has eliminated tariffs and other trade barriers among member states, promoting infra-regional trade.
- The EAC has established a common market, allowing for the free movement of goods, services, capital, and labor among member states.

- The EAC has prioritized infrastructure development, including roads, railways, and ports, to improve connectivity and facilitate trade.
- The EAC has implemented trade facilitation measures, such as single customs documents and electronic cargo tracking systems, to reduce trade costs and improve efficiency.
- The EAC has promoted investment in the region, attracting foreign direct investment and promoting economic growth.
- The EAC has prioritized agricultural development, promoting cooperation in areas such as crop production, livestock development, and fisheries management.
- The EAC has promoted industrialization, supporting the development of manufacturing industries and promoting value addition.
- The EAC has promoted tourism development, highlighting the region's rich cultural and natural heritage.
- The EAC has promoted cooperation in health, including initiatives to combat infectious diseases and improve healthcare systems.
- The EAC has promoted cooperation in education, including initiatives to improve access to quality education and promote research.
- The EAC has prioritized peace and security, promoting cooperation among member states to address security challenges.

- The EAC has promoted women's empowerment, supporting initiatives to promote gender equality and women's participation in decision-making. The EAC has prioritized youth development, promoting initiatives to support youth entrepreneurship and employment by giving them startup capital.
- The EAC has prioritized environmental protection, promoting initiatives to conserve natural resources and mitigate the impacts of climate change through promoting sustainable waste management practices, including recycling and waste reduction initiatives.
- The EAC has promoted regional integration, fostering cooperation among member states and promoting economic growth and development. Through projects like Standard Gauge Railway which aims to improve transportation infrastructure and facilitate trade.

In conclusion, The EACs achievements demonstrate its commitment to promoting economic integration and cooperation among its member states, while addressing concerns about neocolonialism and therefore the delegate should withdraw his critique.

b. Basing on scenario, prepare an essay in support of the member's criticism regarding the aspect of neo-colonialism in Uganda?

LIKELY RESPONSES

The problem identified in the scenario is lack of knowledge on how neocolonialism manifests its self in Uganda.

Neo-colonialism can be defined as a concerted effort by developed countries or former colonial masters to use their political and economic strength to maintain influence over weaker nations or their former colonies.

Foreign companies dominate Uganda's economy, particularly in sectors like agriculture (e.g., Bidco Uganda's control over the edible oil market) and telecommunications (e.g., MTN Uganda).

- The EAC-EU Economic Partnership Agreement (EPA) has been criticized for favoring European companies over local ones, potentially undermining Uganda's industrial development.
- Uganda relies heavily on foreign aid, which can compromise its economic sovereignty and perpetuate neo-colonial relationships (e.g., Uganda's dependence on donor funding for its budget).
- Foreign companies exploit Uganda's natural resources, such as oil and minerals, often without providing fair compensation or benefits to local communities (e.g., oil extraction in the Albertine Graben).
- Western cultural values and practices are imposed on Ugandan society through media and education, potentially eroding local cultures and traditions (e.g., the spread of Western-style education).

- Foreign companies often exploit Ugandan workers, paying low wages and providing poor working conditions (e.g., workers in the construction industry).
- Foreign investment projects, such as dams and mining operations, often displace local communities, violating their rights and establish new economic and social structures.
- Health Impacts: Foreign companies may prioritize profits over the health and well-being of local communities, exacerbating health problems and limiting access to healthcare (e.g., oil extraction and pollution in the Albertine Graben).
- Foreign powers exert significant influence over Uganda's policy-making processes, shaping decisions that serve their interests (e.g., IMF and World Bank conditionality).
- Uganda's sovereignty is compromised by external interference, limiting its ability to make independent decisions (e.g., donor influence on Uganda’s budget and policy decisions).
- Foreign powers support authoritarian regimes or leaders who prioritize their interests over those of the Ugandan people.

In conclusion, neo-colonialism is a significant challenge facing Uganda, manifesting itself in various forms that is to say political, social and economic forms as explained above.

TOPIC: Scramble, Partition and colonization. And indirect rule.

Competences

a. Explains the effects of European colonization on East Africa.

b. Explains the impacts of indirect rule on East Africa.

ITEM

A local radio station in our community recently hosted alive debate on the legacy of colonial administration in Uganda. Two guests were featured, Dr. Achili, apolitical analyst and Prof. Akil, a lecturer at a regional institution. During the discussion, Dr. Achili argued that the 1884-1885 Berlin conference permanently damaged African unity, trade and indigenous systems. In contrast Prof. Akil claimed that the implementation of indirect rule through kingdoms provided stability and preserved African culture during foreign occupation. However, a community elder called in to dispute this, stating that such strategies benefited only a few while oppressing the majority. This sparked a mixed reaction, raising question about whether colonial strategies were designed to protect Africans or control them more easily. As a listener, the radio presenter has invited you to share your thoughts on the argument.

TASK

a. Explain to the listeners the points that support Dr. Achili's argument about European colonization on Africans.

LIKELY RESPONSES

The problem identified in the scenario is confusion by listener on whether colonial strategies were designed to protect Africans or to control them.

European colonization can be defined as a period when European powers explored, conquered and settled in the different parts of East Africa. Uganda and Kenya were colonized by the British while Tanganyika was colonized by Germany and later taken on by the British as a mandate territory after world war I.

Below are the arguments that support Dr Achili's view about European colonization.

- Colonial powers over exploited East Africa's natural resources like minerals, timber and agriculture products without regard for the well-being of the local population. This has made the people of East Africa poor and dependent on them.

- They introduced colonial policies like forced labour, over taxation, cash crop growing, which were exploitative in nature towards the Africans. Some of these policies are still in existence today though in different forms.

- Colonialism led to the dependency syndrome among the Africans countries. In so doing they became dependent on foreign aid inform of machinery human resources etc. This has undermined local economic development as Africans have continued to supply raw materials at a low price and get finished goods expensively.

- Colonial rule led to loss of African creativity and innovativeness as Africans indigenous/local industries died out e.g. iron smelting backcloth making, basket weaving etc. as European products were introduced. This has remained the trend as Africans continue to prefer foreign goods.

- Colonial rule led to torture, imprisonment, and loss of life as Africans reacted to colonial policies like land alienation forced labour, over-taxation etc. Similar policies are seen today and have led to recent riots and demonstrations in East African countries like Kenya, Uganda etc.

- With the introduction of cash crop growing, Africans neglected food crop growing. This led to food shortage/ famine in some places. Today in some parts of Uganda, people have taken on sugar cane growing for money leading to food insecurity in some areas.

- Colonial rule led to loss of land and displacement of people e.g. Kenyan highlands where the Kikuyu, Masai had to be pushed in the reserves as the whites established plantations and farms. Today the whites do come in as foreign investors and displace Africans.

- With the introduction of colonial boundaries, some people belonging to the same tribe and families were forced to belong to different countries e.g. Samia, Sabiny, and Gishu etc. This has led to unclear identity and boundary conflicts or misunderstandings e.g. Uganda and Kenya over Migingo Island.

- Colonialism led to division along religion lines, which created disunity and natural hatred and even political parties were built along religions lines i.e. D.P Catholics UPC — Protestants which caused disunity. The current political parties still bring out disunity based on such grounds.

- Colonial rule introduced /encouraged theoretical education, neglecting practical/ vocational education hence creating job seekers. This has created unemployment though the new lower secondary curriculum is frying to address this challenge.

- Some of the agreements signed by the colonists and African rulers led to unfair land policies e.g. in Buganda, Toro, Ankole etc. which led to conflicts e.g. mailo land , crown land and freehold, such conflicts have continued to exist in the different communities and people are not happy.

In conclusion, I 'strongly support Dr. Achili's view about colonial rule in East Africa since it had far reaching impacts on people in form of political, social and economic aspects as explained above.

TOPIC: Understanding our past.

Competences

a. Explains benefits of historical sites.

b. Explains the importance of learning about our past.

ITEM

The district education service commissioner held a meeting at the town hall to discuss the new education reforms. The district chairperson attended in person and proposed reducing history content, arguing that focusing on future careers is more practical than learning about the past. Meanwhile, nearby cultural site was being demolished to make way for shopping centers. This act has sparked concern among the local community who have a strong attachment to the site. They have approached the community elders to intervene and stop the destruction. The elders have tasked you with educating those responsible for the demolition about the importance of preserving such and the benefits of history.

ITEM

a. Compose a speech to defend the native about the step they took about the site.

LIKELY RESPONSES

The problem identified in the scenario is lack of Knowledge by the district chairperson about the importance of cultural sites.

Cultural sites can also be known as Historical sites. These can be defined as special places where the past human remains, tools or implements are found. These hold significant cultural, historical, or architectural importance, providing a connection to the past. These sites include examples like Bigobyamugenyi, Kasubi tombs, Olduvai Gorge among others.

As a defender of the native community's actions, I strongly believe that preserving historical sites and cultural heritage is crucial for our identity, education, and development due to the following reasons;

- Historical sites reflect our cultural identity and heritage, connecting us to our past and shaping our sense of belonging.
- Sites preserve traditional practices, customs, and ways of life, allowing us to team nom and appreciate our ancestors.
- Historical sites often serveas community gathering places, fostering social cohesion and a sense of belonging.
- Historical sites provide a link to the past, enabling us to learn from historical events, cultural practices, and traditional ways of life.
- Historical sites can be used to teach various subjects, including history, archaeology, anthropology, and sociology.

- Historical sites can attract tourists, generating revenue and creating jobs for local communities working with the tourism industry.
- Preserving historical sites can stimulate local economic growth, supporting small businesses and entrepreneurship.
- Historical sites can create jobs in conservation, tourism, and education, contributing to local employment opportunities.
- Historical sites can instill a sense of pride and ownership among community members, promoting cultural heritage and identity.
- Preserving historical sites can foster community engagement, encouraging local residents to participate in conservation efforts.
- Historical sites can facilitate cultural exchange between different communities, promoting cross-cultural understanding and appreciation. Historical sites often include green spaces, providing recreational areas and promoting environmental conservation.

In conclusion, the preservation of historical sites and cultural heritage is crucial for our collective identity, education, and development due to the political, social and economic gains they possess as discussed above.

b. Write an article opposing the district chairperson proposal to modern education.

The problem identified in the scenario is lack of knowledge by the chairperson about the importance of studying and teaching History and Political Education in Schools.

ITEM

The Constitution of Uganda has under gone n number of reviews since independence. These reviews led to the formation of the 1995 constitution which has become the yard stick upon which the country is run. "This constitution provides for the rights and duties of its citizens. It also talks about the key national symbols such as the coat of arms, the flag as well as the different roles played by the different arms of government.

However, many Ugandans seem to be unaware about such information and of recent many Ugandans have been wondering what the judiciary does to support the development of the country.

A work shop to sensitize citizens about the judiciary has been organized in your home area and you have been selected to make a presentation in that regard.

TASK

As a student of History and Political education prepare your presentation.

LIKELY RESPONSES

The problem identified in the scenario is lack of knowledge/ ignorance by the citizens about the roles and functions of the judiciary towards development of the country.

- The judiciary is a branch of government responsible for interpreting and applying the law. It is composed of courts and judges who adjudicate disputes, determine the constitutionality of laws, and ensure that justice is served.
- The judiciary plays a vital role in upholding the tule of law and promoting justice. Here are the key roles: - The judiciary interprets the Constitution and Jaws, ensuring they are applied fairly and consistently.eg in a case involving a dispute over the meaning of a statutory provision, the judiciary interprets the provision end applies it to the facts of the case.
- The judiciary provides a forum for resolving disputes, promoting peace and stability in society.eg in a civil case, the judiciary hears evidence and arguments from both parties and makes a decision based on the law and facts.
- The judiciary safeguards human rights, protecting citizens from abuse and ensuring their rights are respected.eg in a case involving a violation of freedom of speech, the judiciary can order the government to stop interfering with the individual's right to express themselves.
- The judiciary holds public officials accountable for their actions, preventing corruption and abuse of power e.g. in a case involving corruption, the judiciary can convict and sentence public officials who have engaged in corrupt practices.

- The judiciary ensures that justice is served, providing a fair and impartial forum for resolving disputes.eg in a criminal case, the judiciary ensures that the accused receives a fair trial and is sentenced according to the law.
- The judiciary ensures that laws and government actions are consistent with the Constitution.eg in a case challenging the constitutionality of a law, the judiciary can strike down the law if it is found to be inconsistent with the Constitution.
- The judiciary provides guidance on the interpretation and application of laws, helping to clarify legal principles e.g. in a landmark case, the judiciary can establish a new legal principle or clarify an existing one, providing guidance for future cases.
- The judiciary resolves disputes related to the Constitution, ensuring that constitutional principles are upheld.eg in a case involving a dispute between different branches of government, the judiciary can interpret the Constitution and resolve the dispute.
- The judiciary promotes the rule of law, ensuring that laws are applied fairly and consistently.eg in a case involving a challenge to a government action, the judiciary can ensure that the action is lawful and consistent with the Constitution.
- The judiciary supports economic development by providing a stable and predictable legal environment.eg in a case involving a business dispute, the judiciary can provide a fair and impartial decision, promoting stability and predictability in business transactions.

- The judiciary promotes transparency in government and public institutions, ensuring accountability and good govetnnnce.eg in a case involving a freedom of information request, the judiciary can order the government to disclose information, promoting transparency and accountability.

- The judiciary safeguards individual rights and freedoms, protecting citizens from abuse and ensuring their rights are respectcd.eg in a case involving a violation of the right to privacy, the judiciary can order the government to stop interfering with the individual's right to privacy.

- The judiciary ensures that all citizens have access to justice, regardless of their background or socioeconomic status.eg in a case involving a dispute over access to justice, the judiciary can order the government to provide legal aid or other forms of assistance to ensure equal access to justice.

- The judiciary interprets international law, ensuring that Uganda's international obligations are met.eg in a case involving a dispute over the interpretation of an international treaty, the judiciary can interpret the treaty and apply it to the facts of the case. Thus helping the country not to commit crime that can lead it into making loses.

- The judiciary provides a forum for citizens to seek redress for grievances, promoting accountability and justice.eg in a case involving a complaint against a public official, the judiciary can provide a fair and impartial hearing, allowing the citizen to seek redress for their grievance.

- The judiciary upholds the principles of natural justice, ensuring that citizens are treated fairly and impartially.

In conclusion, by performing these roles, the judiciary plays a vital part in promoting justice, stability, and development in society and the entire country at large.

ITEM

For centuries, people have been moving to the different parts of the world settling in those areas and Uganda is one of those countries they have settled in. This has left many locals wondering why this kind of trend has continued to take place. These kind of movements have also continued to breed conflicts with locals where ever they settle including in your home area.

Local leaders in your village have identified you to work with them in order to identify the reasons behind these unending movements and also help suggest possible ways to mitigate them.

TASK

Prepare your findings and suggestion in an essay.

LIKELY RESPONSES

The problem in the scenario is lack of knowledge by locals on the reasons for continued migrations into their village.

The continued movements can also be referred to as migrations. A migration refers to the movement of people from one place to another, often involving a change of residence or location. This movement can be within a country (internal migration) or across international borders (international migration). Migration can be driven by various factors, including economic, social, environmental, or political reasons as discussed below.

- Many people migrate to Uganda in search of better job opportunities, such as in the agriculture, construction, or service sectors.
- Migrants may be attracted to Uganda's relatively higher wages compared to their home counties.
- Some migrants may be attracted to country in order to carry out invest in businesses with in Uganda, thus creating jobs and stimulating economic growth.
- Some migrants may move to Uganda s as to reunite with family members who may have already settled in the country.
- Some migrants maybe moving to Uganda to access better education opportunities for themselves or their children.
- Climate change can drive people to migration as they seek to escape environmental degradation, such as droughts or floods, in their home countries.
- Natural disasters, such as earthquakes or hurricanes, can force people to migrate to safer areas such as Uganda.
- Some migrants may flee to Uganda to escape war, conflict, or persecution in their home countries.
- Uganda's relative stability and security can attract migrants seeking a safe haven to come and settle in the different villages with in the county.

- Some people may migrate to Uganda for adventure, exploration, or to experience a new culture given that Uganda has a diversity of cultures and tourist sites.
- Some migrants may move to Uganda to access better healthcare services or medical treatment as compared to those in their countries.
- Entrepreneurs may migrate to Uganda to start businesses or invest in existing ones due to the good working environment and availability of cheap reliable labour.
- Globalization has also facilitated migration by increasing connectivity and economic interdependence between countries.

In conclusion, the reasons for continued migrations are many most of which are political, social and economic. However these reasons can be mitigated in the following ways below.

- The Governments, private sector, and NGOs can create employment opportunities in rural areas through initiatives like Investing in agriculture, tourism, and small-scale industries. This help reduce on the number of people migrating to different areas due to unemployment.
- Governments and private sector can provide vocational training and skills development programs to equip people with skill so as to become job creators rather than job seeker.
- The Governments can invest in economic development projects, such as:

  - Infrastructure development (roads, bridges, and ports)
  - Supporting small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) through loans and grants to boast investment.
- Microfinance institutions can provide financial services to support entrepreneurship and small business development, such as:
  - Providing microloans and savings services to low-income individuals.
- The Governments, NGOs, and private sector can provide education and training opportunities, such as:
  - Building schools and providing educational materials.
  - Offering vocational training programs in areas like technology and healthcare.
- The Governments can improve access to healthcare, education, and other social services, such as:
  - Building healthcare facilities and providing medical supplies.
  - Implementing programs to improve access to education, such as scholarships and subsidies.
- The Governments, NGOs, and community-based organizations can invest in community development projects, such as:
  - Building community infrastructure, like roads and water systems.

  - Implementing programs to promote social cohesion and community engagement (Government, NGOs, and community-based organizations)
- The Governments, NGOs, and private sector can promote sustainable agriculture practices, such as:
  - Providing training and resources to farmers on sustainable agriculture techniques.
  - Implementing programs to conserve natural resources and protect biodiversity.
- The Governments and international organizations can implement measures to mitigate the impacts of climate change, such as:
  - Investing in renewable energy sources, like solar and wind power.
  - Implementing climate-resilient infrastructure, like sea walls and flood resistant buildings.
- The Governments, NGOs, and local communities can manage natural resources sustainably, such as:
  - Implementing sustainable forest management practices.
  - Protecting wildlife habitats and conserving biodiversity.
- The Governments, NGOs, and community-based organizations can promote peace building initiatives, such as:

  - Implementing programs to promote dialogue and reconciliation.
  - Providing support to refugees and internally displaced persons (IDPs).
- The Governments can establish conflict resolution mechanisms, such as:
  - Implementing mediation and arbitration programs.
  - Strengthening justice systems to address human rights violations.
- The Governments, NGOs, and international organizations can protect human rights, such as:
  - Implementing programs to promote human rights awareness and education.
  - Providing support to human rights defenders and activists.
- The Governments can develop and implement effective migration policies, such as:
  - Implementing policies to manage migration flows and protect migrant rights.
  - Providing support to migrant integration programs.
- The Governments can improve border management, such as: Implementing measures to secure borders and prevent illegal migration.
  - Providing training and resources to border officials.

- The Governments and international organizations can collaborate to address migration challenges, such as:
  - Developing regional and global frameworks for migration management.
  - Providing support to countries affected by migration.

  In conclusion, the causes of migrations are very many but most of these can be mitigated if the Governments with the help of the international community and NGOs work together as mentioned above.

ITEM

Pilgrims from various Dioceses across Uganda begun their spiritual journey to the Uganda Martyrs Shrine in Namugongo on 16th May 2025, where the annual Uganda Martyrs Day celebration took place on 3rd June 2025.

As they travelled, pilgrims engaged in prayers, singing hymns, and participating in acts of devotion. This collective spirituality created a strong sense of unity and connection among people from all walks of life.

This pilgrimage was not just a physical journey; it was a time for spiritual reflection, healing, and transformation. Pilgrims walked not only with their feet but with faith, seeking blessings, deliverance, and a deeper relationship with God.

TASK

You have been invited to a television talk show, prepare a presentation to use this opportunity to sensitize the public on why this martyr's shrine has gained global significance.

LIKELY RESPONSES

The problem in the scenario is the ignorance of the people about the significance of the Uganda Martyrs' Shrine at Namugongo.

Uganda Martyrs' Shrine Namugongo is located in Kyaliwajjala Ward, Kira Municipality, Wakiso District. It's the place where on 3rd June 1886, 22 Catholics and 23 Anglican converts were burnt to death by Kabaka Mwanga of Buganda Kingdom for refusing to denounce their newly acquired Christian faith. Today, Namugongo is a place of global importance because of many factors among which ate the following:-

- Namugongo Shrine is important because it's the place in which the people from Uganda and other parts of the world annually congregate to commemorate the lives and the religious beliefs of the Uganda Martyrs. It's actually the source of our faith.
- It's a unifying factor in the Catholic Church in Uganda. All the Catholic Dioceses in Uganda congregate on every 3rd June each year to celebrate this great day, It further brings together all Christians and Muslim alike together to commemorate these martyrs because it's a public holiday in the country.
- The shrine is important because it's a religious tourist attraction attracting tourists from all over the country and the world at large. Through this, the country earns foreign exchange from the tourists and the local traders also benefit much from the markets created during that period.

- Namugongo Martyrs Shrine is a source of revenue for the Catholic Church. The church gets money for the services that it offers to its customers as well as the tourists that come in from all over the world.

- It's a place for intensive prayer not only for the Catholics but the followers of other religious denominations as well. There is spiritual healing that takes place there and after the intensive prayers people get spiritually renewed.

- The shrine is important because it's the place for honoring Uganda's pre — Christian heritage of spirituality and ancestry. Uganda stands out as a Christian county and one of the few counties with the biggest number of converts in the world.

- It's a sign of everlasting strength in faith exhibited by the martyrs and an encouragement to all Christians to be firm in their faith against threats and intimidation even in the face of death.

- Both Catholics and Anglicans believe that the martyrs are their intercessors to God making Namugongo an important place for worship. The*faithful go to pray there so that the Uganda martyrs in heaven continue to intercede for them.

- There, is a pond or water well in the shrine whose water is believed to have healing powers. People normally draw this spiritual water which they believe can heal them. It's believed that the killers of Uganda martyrs washed their hands off the blood of the martyrs in this well after killing their victims.

- Namugongo shrine is important because it receives pilgrims from all over the world who annually come to honor the martyrs who lost their lives because of their religious beliefs. The shrine has projected our image internationally as a country of the faithful.

- The shrine has led to the tremendous development of the area and beyond. A good and modem road network has been constructed, shops and hotel businesses have also come up as well as drinking and popular joints for goat meat, chicken and pork roasting and all sorts of merry making.

- Many lodges and restaurants have been constructed to house the visitors to the shrine and in the same vein; many business people earn a lot of revenue on the Namugongo day of 3 1d of June every year. Fun and fanfare together with other leisure activities also characterize the martyrs' day.

- It's an encouragement to the living Christians to make their Christian religion a choice and not an imposition and to be willing to accept death in the defense of faith and the five and living God.

- Three Popes, Paul VI, John Paul II and Pope Francis have so far visited and led mass in Namugongo shrine. This makes the shrine a unique and rare place worldwide.

- The annual celebration of the feast of the martyrs is among the largest annual religious celebrations in the world attracting millions of people annually. It has therefore publicized Uganda worldwide.

In conclusion, the global significance of Uganda Martyrs Shrine Namugongo is beyond debate. The millions of people who attend the annual celebration of the lives of the martyrs is testimony to this making it one of the most visited places in Uganda.

TOPIC: Colonial economy in East Africa and World War I.

Competences

a. Explains the impact of colonial economy on East Africa.
b. Explains reasons for involvement of East African countries in World War I.

ITEM

Many years ago, Africans worked hard under an economy that exported profits, which negatively impacted to their local economy. Later, when wars broke out, they were recruited to serve in distant lands with promises that where often unfulfilled upon their return, leaving them with deep regrets. Today, many Africans still struggle with limited job opportunities and question the economic structure that have shaped their lives. Frustration is growing, especially among the youth, who feel that the labor of their ancestors has not yielded tangible benefits for them. As they reflect on their history, some wonder if the foundation of their economy were designed to benefit them.

You have been approached by some of the youth in the community to share your knowledge on the impact of this economic system and the role of World War I on East Africa.

ITEM

a. Prepare a written document you will use to convince the youth to appreciate the above economy on Ugandans today.

LIKELY RESPONSES

The problem identified in the scenario is that youth feel that the involvement of their ancestors in the colonial economy did not yield any positive impact for them to enjoy.

Colonial economy can be defined as the production and consumption patterns that were introduced and implemented by the colonialist during the period of colonial Rule.

Below are the different way through which the colonial economy developed Uganda;-

- Colonial powers developed transportation networks, including roads, railways, and ports, which facilitated the movement of goods and people.
- The colonial economy increased access to markets for East African goods, particularly in Europe and other parts of the world.
- Colonial powers introduced new skills, such as craftsmanship and technical expertise, which benefited local populations.
- Colonial powers established financial systems, including banks and currency systems, which facilitated economic transactions.

- The colonial economy increased international trade, which expanded economic opportunities for East Africa.
- Colonial powers introduced modern communication systems, including telegraphs and telephones, which improved communication and facilitated economic activity.
- The colonial economy attracted investment from European powers, which stimulated economic growth and development.
- Colonial powers developed modern infrastructure, including water supply systems, electricity, and sanitation, which improved living standards.
- Colonial powers introduced new industries, such as textiles and food processing, which created employment opportunities and stimulated economic growth.
- The colonial economy established modern economic institutions, including stock exchanges and commodity markets, which continue to shape East Africa's economies today.
- The colonial economy created new economic opportunities for women, particularly in the informal sector.
- The colonial economy led to the growth of a middle class in East Africa, particularly among the African elite.
- The colonial economy improved standards of living for some East Africans, particularly those who benefited from new economic opportunities.

- The colonial economy led to increased access to healthcare services, particularly in urban areas.
- Colonial powers introduced modern agricultural techniques, which improved crop yields and increased food security.

In conclusion, the colonial economy impacted on the people of east Africa economically, socially and politically as explained above.

b. Explain to the youth that there is no need to regret for failure of their ancestor to be rewarded in the above war.

LIKELY RESPONSES

The problem identified in the scenario is frustration among the youth claiming that the efforts of their ancestors did not yield fruits or benefits.

World War I was global war fought among the European powers and lasted from 1914 to 1918. It was one of the deadliest conflicts in history, involving many countries and empires from different parts of the world. East Africa got involved in the war because Uganda and Kenya were under Britain while Tanganyika was under Germany which were enemies.

World War I had several positive impacts on East Africa, despite the devastating effects of the war. Some of the positive effects include;-

- The war stimulated self-sufficiency in regions like the Belgian Congo and German East Africa, as they were cut off from their metropolitan powers. This led to local industries and agriculture developing to meet the demands of the war effort.

- The influx of British troops into East Africa especially Kenya injected million into the economy, stimulating industrial growth and development.
- The war opened up new opportunities for educated African elite groups, allowing them to look beyond their colonial relationships and see themselves as part of a larger continent and world.
- In East Africa, the number of Muslims grew significantly during the war, from 3% of the population in pre-war years to 25% after the war.
- The war led to increased bureaucratization of the colonial state and more investments in infrastructure, which had long-term benefits for the region. The war contributed to a political awakening in Africa, laying the groundwork for nationalist movements and the desire for independence.
- The war led to the construction of new roads, railways, and ports, which improved transportation and communication networks in the region.
- The war stimulated economic activity in East Africa, particularly in industries such as textiles, food processing, and construction.

- The war created opportunities for local businesses to grow and develop, particularly those that supplied goods and services to the military.
- The war led to the development of new skills among Africans, particularly in areas such as engineering, mechanics, and medicine.
- The war led to an increase in access to education for Africans, particularly those who served in the military or worked with European colonizers.
- The war led to an increase in international trade in East Africa, particularly with countries outside of Europe.
- The war led to the emergence of new leaders in East Africa, particularly among the African elite who had served in the military or worked with European colonizers.

In conclusion, the youth should appreciate that World War I transformed East Africa politically, socially and economically as explained above.

These positive impacts, however, should be considered in the context of the immense human suffering and economic disruption caused by the war in East Africa.

TOPIC: Religion in East Africa AND culture and key ethnic groups in East Africa

Competences

a. Explains the activities of European Christian missionaries in East Africa.
b. Explains the need to respect the cultures of other ethnic groups to avoid conflicts.

ITEM

A group of believers has settled in one of the community, tracing their origin to the London missionary society. They have been engaged in various activities including preaching the gospel and providing medical care to the sick. However, their activities have raised concerns among the native population, whose cultural beliefs are being challenged by the Christian teachings. In response, the traditional religious leaders have intervened to protect their teaching and cultural heritage .As a member of the Christian group, you have been approached by the local leaders to educate and reassure the traditional leaders about the positive impacts of the group's activities in the community, while also emphasizing the importance of respecting other people's cultures.

ITEM

a. Explain to the community why the Christian group in the scenario above is needed in our community.

The problem in the scenario is lack of knowledge about the positive impact of the London missionary society with in the community.

The London Missionary Society (LMS) was a British Protestant missionary organization founded in 1795 and it arrived in Uganda in 1877. Its primary objective was to spread Christianity and promote Western education, values, and culture in various parts of the country.

The European Christian missionaries under the LMS had a significant impact on Uganda, bringing about various positive changes as explained below;-

- The LMS established schools, such as the Mengo senior School, which provided education to Ugandans and helped promote literacy to date.
- The LMS introduced Western education, which helped Ugandans acquire new skills and knowledge such as carpentry, bricklaying etc.
- The LMS established hospitals, such as the Mengo Hospital, which provided medical care and improved healthcare in Uganda to date.
- The LMS introduced modem medicine, which helped combat diseases and improve public health.
- The LMS introduced new crops, such as coffee and cotton, which became important cash crops for Ugandans thus improving on their standards of living.

- The LMS facilitated trade between Uganda and other countries, helping to stimulate economic growth.
- The LMS promoted literacy by translating the Bible and other materials into local languages such as Luganda, Lunyankole etc.
- The LMS empowered women by providing them with education and opportunities for social mobility.
- The LMS advocated for social justice and human rights, helping to promote a more equitable society.
- The LMS established community centers, which provided a space for community members to gather and engage in various activities praise and worship there by strengthening their faith in Christianity.
- The LMS promoted community development by working with local leaders and communities to address their needs.

In conclusion, The LMS's legacy in education and healthcare continues to benefit Ugandans today.

TOPIC: Patriotism in Uganda.

Competences

a. Explains the carriers and achievement of personalities who exhibited patriotism in Uganda.
b. Explains the impact of Africanisation of Uganda's economy in 1972.

ITEM

On October 9th ,the president of the republic of Uganda annually awards medals to individuals in recognition of their contribution as patriots -These individuals are selected based on their contribution to the country's political and social economic development *However ,some politicians have raised concerns that the selection process is unfair ,as certain deserving individuals are often overlooked, leading to doubts among many Ugandans .Meanwhile ,others argue that the 1972 economic war paved the way for the country's development and success. This argument has led some in the community to question the value of the awards viewing them as redundant. The debate has caught the attention of local leaders, who have stepped forward to educate the community about the significance of both the awards and the economic war.

ITEM

a. How has the war in the scenario benefitted Ugandan's today?

LIKELY RESPONSES

The problem in the scenario is limited knowledge about the significance of the economic war to the people with in the community.

The Economic War of 1972 refers to a series of economic policies and actions implemented by the government of Uganda under President Idi Amin in 1972. The policies aimed to promote Africanisation and indigenization of the economy, reducing the influence of foreign nationals, particularly Asians and Europeans.

Below are the benefits of this war on Ugandans;-

- The economic war helped to transfer ownership of businesses from foreigners to Ugandans, potentially increasing local economic participation in trade.
- The economic war created jobs for Ugandans. Some argue that the expulsion of foreign workers and business owners created job opportunities for Ugandans in various sectors.
- The encouraged local entrepreneurship as Ugandans were forced to take over businesses previously owned by foreigners.
- The economic war was seen as a step towards economic independence from colonial powers and foreign dominance.
- The policy redistribute wealth from foreign-owned businesses to Ugandan citizens.

- The takeover of foreign-owned businesses potentially increased government revenue through taxes and profits.
- The economic war promoted the growth of indigenous industries as Ugandans were encouraged to develop their own businesses.
- The policy reduce Uganda's economic dependence on foreign powers in decision making among others.
- The economic war empowered local communities by giving them more control over their economic destiny.
- The policy encouraged Ugandans to be more self-reliant and develop their own economic capabilities.
- As Ugandans took over businesses, they developed new skills and expertise in various sectors such as manufacturing,
- The economic war created new economic opportunities for Ugandans, particularly in sectors previously dominated by foreigners.
- The policy boosted national pride as Ugandans took control of their economy.

In conclusion, the economic war of 1972 led to a fundamental change in the way of life among Ugandans politically, socially and economically.

TOPIC: THE COLONIAL ADMINISTRATIVE SYSTEMS IN EAST AFRICA.

Competence

a. Knowing the effects of direct and indirect rule.

b. Understands the contributions of colonial administration system

ITEM

During election period in Uganda some members of a given political group promised that if their party win the presidential election, they will opt to remove government representative in every district and they will administer them while their opposition insists that if they win the elections, they will allow them to choose their leaders to ease service delivery. You have been contacted to make a presentation guiding the above political groups.

TASK

a) Explain the outcomes of different opinion of the political groups.

LIKELY RESPONSES

The problem in the scenario is that one political group wishes to use direct rule while anther opts for indirect rule system.

Direct rule refers to a system of colonial governance where the colonial power exercises direct control over the colony's administration, laws, and institutions. The colonial power appoints its own officials to govern the colony, and the local population had limited or no participation in decision making. This was used by the Germans in Tanganyika.

Indirect rule, on the other hand, refers to a system of colonial governance where the colonial power exercises control over the colony through local leaders or traditional authorities. The local leaders are allowed to maintain some degree of autonomy and are responsible for implementing colonial policies. This system of administration was mainly used by the British, Direct government involvement can ensure uniform policies and practices across regions, promoting consistency and cohesion.

Centralized decision-making can lead to faster and more efficient implementation of policies and projects.

- Government involvement can bring in specialized expertise and resources, enhancing the capacity of local administrations.
- Direct involvement allows the government to prioritize national interests and ensure alignment with broader development goals.
- Government oversight can standardize services, ensuring a basic level of quality and access across different regions.
- In of crisis, direct government involvement can provide immediate support and resources.

- For large-scale national projects, centralized management can ensure coordination and efficiency.
- Government involvement can help build capacity in local administrations, especially in areas with limited resources.

On the other hand these are the benefits of indirect rule as explained below;-

- ➢ Local leaders are more accountable to the people they serve, as they are directly chosen by them.
- ➢ Local leaders have a deeper understanding of the community's needs, challenges and priorities.
- ➢ Locally chosen leaders can respond more quickly and effectively to local issues and concerns.
- ➢ When locals choose their leaders, it fosters a sense of ownership and encourages community participation in decision-making.
- ➢ Local leaders are more likely to understand and respect local customs, traditions, and values,
- ➢ When people choose their own leaders, it builds trust in the governance
- ➢ Local leaders can develop Solutions that are tailored to the specific needs and context of their community.
- ➢ Locally chosen leaders can ensure that services are delivered in a way that meets the specific needs of the community.

- When locals have a say in leadership, they are more likely to invest in their community's development.
- Local leadership can lead to more sustainable development, as decisions are made with a deep understanding of the local context.

In conclusion, by allowing local people to choose their own leaders, communities can benefit from more responsive, accountable and effective governance.

TOPIC: STRUGGLE FOR INDEPENDENCE IN EAST AAFRICA

Competence

a. Explain the steps taken in the struggle of east African states independence.

ITEM

After 1945 most East African states struggled to participate in their governance. In 1960s, they gained some success to reclaim the authority over their affairs. However, recently many foreign investors are taking over what was gained like land, companies etc. In your community several locals were evicted from their land by the foreign investors who want to set up factories. This has caused conflicts between community members and the investors. The community members have come to you for guidance.

TASK

a. Explain to the local community the steps they can undertake to address the issue.

LIKELY RESPONSES

The problem in the scenario is that investors are evicting locals off their land causing conflicts between the investor and the locals.

A foreign investor is an individual, company, or organization that invests capital or resources in a business or enterprise in a country other than their own. Foreign investors can bring in new technologies, management expertise, and capital, contributing to economic growth and development in the host country. Below are the possible ways to address foreign dominance.

- Community members should come together, discuss their concerns, and unite to present a strong, collective voice.
- Consult with legal experts to understand their rights and options for protecting their land and interests.
- Initiate open and respectful dialogue with investors and government authorities to express concerns and negotiate fair terms.
- Gather and document evidence of land ownership, usage, and cultural significance to support their claims. Engage with local leaders, government officials, or community organizations to seek support and guidance.
- Consider alternative solutions that balance economic development with community needs and rights.
- Raise awareness about the issue through media, social networks, or community events to build public support and pressure for fair treatment.
- Promote Local Entrepreneurship by encouraging and supporting local businesses to reduce dependence on foreign companies. By developing Local Industries through Investment in local industries, such as manufacturing, agriculture, and services. Support Small and Medium-Sized

Enterprises (SMEs) by providing resources and funding to SMEs to help them grow and compete favorably

- Through diversifying the local economy to reduce dependence on a single industry or sector.
- Through the Promotion of local products and services to increase demand and support local businesses.
- By investing in Local Infrastructure such as transportation and communication networks, to support local economic development.

In conclusion, by taking these steps, the local community can work towards finding a resolution that respects their rights and interests.

TOPIC: DEMOCRACY AND LEADERSHIP IN EAST AFRICA

Competence

a. Explain the characteristics of a good governance.

b. Explain the characteristics of democratic state.

ITEM

During the inter school debate held in Kampala on the topic the governance and democracy in Uganda one of the debaters argued that the current system is undemocratic in Uganda, This was rejected by the opposers causing stir in the debate. You attended that debate and you are given opportunity to contribute to clear this misunderstanding.

TASK

a. In an essay, explain what you will present to both parties.

b. Explains what you think the democratic system should portray.

TOPIC: CIVIL SOCIETY AND NON-GOVERNMENT ORGANISATION IN EAST AFRICA

Competence.

a. Explaining the roles of CSOs and NGOs in our society

ITEM

In recent years the government of Uganda became concerned over the CSOs and NGOs blaming them for being partisan and misleading. The government even banned some of them for violating the rules governing their operations. Some members ofyour community support the government action while others opposed it because they appreciate their services. Those in favor of those organizations have requested you to convince those supporting the government move.

ITEM

a. Explain how you will convince them.

LIKELY RESPONSES

The problem identified is Lack of knowledge by the government about the importance of CSOs and NGOs in society.

NGOs (Non-Governmental Organizations) are independent organizations that operate separately from government. They often focus on specific issues, such as Human rights, environmental conservation, education etc.

The following are the reasons why the government should not ban the CSOs and NGOs,

- CSOs/NGOs provide essential services, such as healthcare, education, and sanitation, to marginalized communities.
- CSOs and NGOs build capacity of local communities, governments, and other organizations to improve service delivery.
- CSOs/NGOs conduct research and analyze policies to inform decision making.
- CSOs/NGOs advocate for policy changes, human rights, and good governance.
- They monitor government programs and policies, evaluating their effectiveness.
- CSOs/NGOs promote transparency and accountability in government and private sector.
- CSOs/NGOs mobilize communities to take action on issues affecting them.
- They empower marginalized groups, such as women, youth, and minorities.
- CSOs/NGOs promote human rights and dignity.
- CSOs/NGOs respond to disasters, providing emergency relief and support. They provide humanitarian aid to refugees, internally displaced persons, and other vulnerable populations.
- CSOs/NGOs provide microfinance services and economic empowerment programs.

- They support entrepreneurship development, promoting economic growth. CSOs/NGOs promote environmental conservation and sustainable development.

In conclusion, by allowing NGOs and CSOs to operate, government can tap into these benefits hence achieving sustainable development goals.

ST. JOSEPH'S SCHOOL – NAGALAMA.

SECTION A

ITEM 1

Uganda is a multi-religious country with Islam being one of the major religions. Islam reached in Uganda when Arab Moslems came searching for trade goods especially Ivory, gold and slaves during 19 century trade that was referred to as the long-distance trade. As they traded, they also influenced the local people to convert to Islam.

S.1s in your school were given an assignment to research about how Islam has impacted on the country and also how the 19thc century long distance trade impacted on modem Uganda. Unfortunately, the learners could not explain their views well to the satisfaction of their teacher, You have been Invited to have a discussion for these learners about the same so they learn how to bring out clear explanations.

TASK 1

Prepare an essay you will use during the discussion regarding the Impact of;

a. Religion above on the country.

b. The trade in the scenario on modern Uganda.

ITEM 2

The government of Uganda sees foreign investment as a major way that can lead to economic development of the country. Consequently, different foreign investors especially from the Asian continent have been encouraged to come and invest in different sectors.

These investors have acquired land with the help of government and individual Ugandans that willingly sell off their land. This however has not been well received by some Ugandans who have continuously questioned the reasons for increased coming of these foreign investors and also tie impact these investors have had on the country.

A sensitization program has been organized to educate the Ugandans about these foreign investors and you have been requested join the sensitization team.

TASK 2

In a detailed document, organize information you wilt use in regard to;

a. Reasons for the coming of the above foreigners.

b. The impact they have had on the country.

ITEM 3

Between 1939 -1945, the world was faced with the 2nd major war. This involved different countries in the World either fighting on the side of the Germans or the British. East African countries fought on the British side„ To many historians, it is good this war broke out because If. it had not occurred, the region would perhaps still be under colonial rule. To them, the outbreak of this War enabled the people of East Africa to use different approaches/methods in order to fight for their independence which was finally granted in the early 1960s.

The arguments of these historians have left some people especially the young completely confused and doubting the truths (n them (the arguments). Some of these people have approached you for dear explanations to clear their doubts and you have promised to help.

TASK 3

Write an essay that you will use to explain to the above people;

a. How that war led to the Independence of East African countries.

b. Approaches used by the East Africans to get Independence,

ITEM 4

While on a radio talk show, a Member of Parliament (MP) said citizens play an important role in the making of the constitution. That it shows love for their nation if citizens show interest in regarding constitution making among other loyalty actions that keep the nation forward. He emphasized that it is important for citizens to love their nation.

However, his speech was received with mixed reactions with many people calling in asking about their role in constitutional making and also why it is important to love their nation which questions were not given direct and immediate answers due to limited time for the show, Some of these people plan to approach you with the same questions and they expect you to have dear information,

TASK 4

Prepare an essay you wilt use to respond to the above people regarding;

a. Their de in making of the constitution.
b. Why It [s Important for. them to love their country.

ITEM 5

Land is a major resource every person in Uganda yearns to have. This has resulted into endless land conflicts in different societies that have sometimes claimed peoples' lives. It has been discovered by the leaders that people engage in conflicts over land partly due to ignorance about different ways of owning land in Uganda and it has also been realized that some Ugandans are Ignorant about how land is a basis/ foundation for a country's development;

The ministry of lands, housing and urban development has organized a sensitization campaign in different parts of the country to sensitize the masses about the above land Issues. In your community, you have been selected to be part of this team and you are going to address frte people,

TASK 5

Prepare a detailed speech you will give regarding;

a. Ways of ownership of the above resource in the country.
b. How it is a foundation for development,

ITEM 6

In 1945, the United Nations-an international peace keeping body was formed with the main aim of maintaining global peace and development, promoting human rights globally among others.

In respect to these, it came up with the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (UDHR) outlining fundamental human rights that are universally applicable to all people irrespective of race, gender or religion. If respected, they can lead to development.

Since Uganda registered her Membership with the UN, some Ugandans have remained totally ignorant about the contribution of the UN in promoting peace and development in the country and also the benefits they can get if the government follows the UDHR, A public outreach and awareness campaign has been organized with the use of media as a channel to educate these Ugandans about the UN and promotion of peace and development in Uganda among other issues. You have been to participate in this campaign on different radio stations.

TASK 6

Organize your speech in regard to;

a. The role of this organization in promoting peace and development in the country.
b. Benefits to the citizens above if the government followed the UDHR.

ITEM 7

In be 1950s, Uganda and Singapore were almost at the same level of economic development with high levels of poverty, poor infrastructure, low levels of industrialization among others. However, today Singapore is counted among the most developed nations while Uganda is among the least developed.

Many Ugandans are questioning about the factors that have made the country lag behind in development and also what can be learnt from countries especially Singapore for Uganda's economic transformation. You have been approached by some of these Ugandans for clear explanations.

TASK 7

In an essay;

a. Explain to the people above why their country has lagged behind in development.
b. The lessons their country can learn from the Asian country in the Scenario to achieve economic transformation?