Fiction Story: A Young Pilgrim's Journey

Ali was a young boy who always dreamed of visiting Makkah. He listened carefully when his teacher explained the rites of Hajj: Tawaf around the Kaaba, Sa'y between Safa and Marwah, standing at Arafat, and stoning the Jamarat.

One night, Ali dreamed he was on the pilgrimage. He wore simple white clothes, just like all the other pilgrims. He walked around the Kaaba with his father, saying prayers. He felt close to Allah and very happy.

Then he joined his mother at Safa and Marwah, running gently between the two hills. He remembered the story of Hajar searching for water for her son Ismail. Ali felt proud to be part of this history.

At Arafat, Ali stood with millions of Muslims, raising his hands to Allah. He asked for forgiveness and promised to always be kind, honest, and helpful. Later, at Mina, he threw small stones at the Jamarat, remembering how Prophet Ibrahim rejected Satan's whispers.

When Ali woke up, he smiled. Even though it was only a dream, he learned that Hajj teaches Muslims obedience, patience, and unity. He promised himself that one day, when he grew older, he would go on the real pilgrimage.

Moral of the Story
