Everybody gathered in the school compound and jubilations could be heard over a distance. Namutesi Sophie who had scored aggregate four was seen crying because she was very excited about her performance.

The school stakeholders thanked the headteacher, teachers, parents and the pupils for the great work. They also promised to organise a thanksgiving function at the beginning of the following term. They said they would invite all parents, the outgoing Primary Seven pupils, and other guests so as to thank God and everyone for the good results.

The headteacher also told the parents that she would give prizes to the candidates who had got aggregate from four to six. These would include; mattresses, pens, books and mathematical sets. She said that awarding such prizes would instil in other children the spirit of hard work and concentrating on their studies so as to excel.
