PROMOTING EQUALITY IN AFRICAN SCHOOLS

Subject: History and Politics      Class: S.1      Term: ONE      Teacher's Name:
Time allocation: 3 periods a week

When it comes to planning your lessons use the structure: starter, I do, we do, you do, plenary. The starter is a written task that reviews previous learning.
Ensure your lessons provide regular and extended opportunities for independent practice.

YPR:

Y= yes, I taught the lesson

P= I partially taught it e.g. I didn't get through all the content.

R= I taught the lesson, but I think students would benefit from a review

Time allocation: 3 periods a week

When it comes to planning your lessons use the structure: starter, I do, we do, you do, plenary. The starter is a written task that reviews previous learning.
 Ensure your lessons provide regular and extended opportunities for independent practice.

YPR:

Y= yes, I taught the lesson

P= I partially taught it e.g. I didn't get through all the content.

R= I taught the lesson, but I think students would benefit from a review

Time allocation: 3 periods a week

When it comes to planning your lessons use the structure: starter, I do, we do, you do, plenary. The starter is a written task that reviews previous learning. Ensure your lessons provide regular and extended opportunities for independent practice.

YPR:

Y= yes, I taught the lesson

P= I partially taught it e.g. I didn't get through all the content.

R= I taught the lesson, but I think students would benefit from a review
