A pupil - friendly workbook

This book comprises the five aspects of the English language i.e. grammar, structures, composition and comprehension. It is tailored for primary six pupils, and it was written for a humble cause.

Preamble

English language has five aspects i.e. vocabulary, grammar, structures, comprehension and composition. You must learn each of these holistically or else you will still remain half-baked. This book will try to move you down that lane, and God willing you will become a boon in an English speaking community.

Aspect: English grammar

ADJECTIVES

Adjectives are descriptive words.

An adjective tells more about a noun or pronoun.

Consider:

- A tall building
- A domestic animal
- A beautiful girl
- Violet eyes
- A wooden table

POSITIONS OF ADJECTIVES

Attributive position

This is when an adjective comes before a noun.

Most adjectives are used in this position, e.g.

✓ She is holding a dangerous weapon.

✓ I don't like stony rice.

✓ He is a brainy man.

✓ I bought a woollen blanket.

✓ We came across a fierce dog.

Predictive position

This is when an adjective comes at the end of a sentence, e.g.

✓ The weapon she is holding is dangerous.

✓ I don't like the rice since it is stony.

✓ That man is brainy.

✓ The blanket I bought was woollen.

✓ The dog we came across was fierce.

DEGREES OF ADJECTIVES

Simple degree

This is also known as positive degree.

You use the simple degree to talk about one noun or pronoun.

Consider:

- Milly is a brown girl.
- Ashiraf is a tall boy.
- I own fat sheep
- BBC is a nice radio.
- The house has a smooth surface.

Comparative degree

You use the comparative degree to compare two sides, people, things, etc.

This degree is usually followed by than.

At times, this degree is preceded by the.

Consider:

- Maryam is smarter than Jessica.
- A kitten is more playful than a puppy.
- Of the dual, the first one is the better.
- The longer he walked, the farther he reached.

Superlative degree

You use the superlative degree to talk about more than two parties, people or things.

It is preceded by the.

Consider:

- Pigs are the fattest animals on the farm.
- Rwanda is the smallest country in East Africa.
- Solomon was the wisest man in history.
- A whale is the largest animal in the world.
- The best team won the match.
- Yusuf was the handsomest man of all times.

Aspect: English grammar

DIRECT AND INDIRECT SPEECH

Direct speech

Direct speech has two parts i.e. the speech tag and the quoted words enclosed by inverted commas. It presents the speaker's exact words.

Examples of speech tags

✓ said Lewis

✓ Lewis said

✓ say Mr Musisi

✓ doctors recommend

✓ reported the journalist

✓ my aunt recalled

Consider:

- (a) "I am learning French now," Lewis said.
- (b) Lewis said, "I am learning French now."
- (c) "My favourite fruit is banana," she said.
- (d) She says, "I am ill."
- (e) "Will you go to the party with me?" she asked me. "Yes," I replied.
- (f) 'We shall go to Dubai this weekend,' said Allan.
- (g) "I shall use this dictionary tomorrow," said Danielle.
- (h) "The sun rises in the east," said our teacher.
- (i) "Where were you yesterday?" the man asked his daughter.
- (j) "Who is the owner of this cable?" asked Rosetta.
- (k) "Who is the owner of this cable, Cynthia?" asked Rosetta.

Indirect speech

Indirect speech is also known as reported speech. It usually has three parts i.e. the speech tag, the conjunction that and the said words in the past tense. At times, that may be left out.

NB: Geographical, scientific, religious, social, academic, biological or natural facts are never reported in the past tense.

When this in the speaker's statement is referring to an object (this watch, this dictionary, this bag, this dress etc.), it changes to the.

When this in the speaker's statement is referring to time (e.g. this day, this morning, this night, this week, this year, this month etc.), it changes to that.

When the tense introducing reported speech is in the present, the whole report remains in the present.

When using ... wanted to know ..., and there is a noun of direct address, make sure you say wanted to know from.

Indirect speech does not use inverted commas, quotation marks or exclamation marks i.e. the actual words are never quoted.

Consider:

(l) Lewis said that he was learning French then.

(m) She said that her favourite fruit was banana.

(n) She says that she is ill.

(o) “Water boils at 100°C,” Mubiru said. (Drop the quotes)

Aspect: English structure

THOUGH CLAUSES

Although is used to express a contrast just like but.

It is not correct to use but after although.

Although can appear at the beginning or within a sentence.

You begin with the main clause when you use although within the sentence.

Consider:

(a) Game meat is tasty but many people don't like it.

Although game meat is tasty, many people don't like it.

Many people don't like game meat although it is tasty.

(b) Osbert is shy. He was voted the chairperson at the meeting.

Although Osbert is shy, he was voted the chairperson of the meeting.

Osbert was voted the chairperson of the meeting although he is shy.

(c) The previous speaker said Father buys clothes. Mother loves me more.

Although the previous speaker said Father buys clothes, Mother loves me more.

NB: You can replace although with any of the following conjunctions:

- ✓ much as
- ✓ though
- ✓ even though
- ✓ whereas
- ✓ in spite of
- ✓ despite

In spite of and despite are usually followed by the fact that...

(c) Game meat is tasty, but many people don't like it .

Despite the fact that game meat is tasty, many people don't like it.

Many people don't like game meat despite the fact that it is tasty.

In spite of the fact that game meat is tasty, many people don't change it.

POEM

Ameera Ayesha Ampumuriza wrote a poem to her grandmother, Bagatahe Zainab Ganafa. Read it carefully and, answer in full sentences, the questions that follow.

Grandmother! Grandmother!

I really admire you

At 80 and you are still strong

Going to the garden at 7:00 am

Not until it is 11:00 am for you to return

Grandmother! Grandmother!

Always welcoming everyone home

Nephews, nieces, children and passers - by

Telling them interesting stories

That make them laugh heartily

Grandmother! Grandmother!

Your absence is a problem

It makes everyone sad

We all sit and watch the road

Waiting to see your black car

ACTIVE AND PASSIVE VOICE

In the active voice, the doer of the action is made clear.

In the passive voice, the attention falls on the action, not the doer. This voice uses the past participle verb form and begins with the tense of the verb to be.

You can write a passive sentence without a doer or agent especially when the subject is obvious, e.g.

The chairs are being smoothed. It is obvious that it is the carpenter who smooths chairs.

Notes:

- The following subjects do not come back in the passive voice:

Someone

Somebody

Something

They

You

It

People in a place or people without a determiner/ qualifier.

- The following subjects may or may not come back.

I

We

He

She

- An adverb of manner comes before the verb it modifies.

Consider:

Present continuous

Use ...is/are/am ... + being + a particle verb

Active voice	Passive voice
Jane is sweeping the classroom. Cassandra is eating rice. Someone is smoothing wood. Geoffrey is grazing goats.	The classroom is being swept by Jane. Rice is being eaten by Cassandra. Wood is being smoothed. ✓ Wood is being smoothed by someone. × Goats are being grazed by Geoffrey.

Past continuous

Use... was being/ were being + a particle verb

Active voice	Passive voice
Jane was sweeping the classroom. Tiffany was making a doll. The carpenter was smoothing furniture.	The classroom was being swept by Jane. A doll was being made by Tiffany. Furniture was being smoothed.

Present simple

Use ...are/is/am ...+ past participle verb with present simple

Active voice	Passive voice
Jane sweeps the classroom. She likes mangoes. I treat young children. They call her Cate. Muzoorra sharpens that chainsaw. Ampumuriza smooths furniture.	The classroom is swept by Jane. Mangoes are liked. ✓ Mangoes are liked by her. × Young children are treated. ✓ Young children are treated by me. ✓ She is called Cate. ✓ She is called Cate by them. × That chainsaw is sharpened by Muzoorra. Furniture is smoothed by Ampumuriza. ✓ Furniture is smoothed. ✓

Past simple

Use... was/were + past participle verb

Active voice	Passive voice
Quraish swept the classroom. Sophia drew a cartoon. You drank the baby's milk.	The classroom was swept by Quraish. A cartoon was drawn by Sophia. The baby's milk was drunk.

Present perfect

(Use ... has been/ have been + past participle verb)

Active voice	Passive voice
Rachel has made a mistake.	A mistake has been made by Rachel. ✓ A mistake has been made. ✓

Future simple

(Use ... will be/ shall be + past participle verb with the future simple)

Active voice	Passive voice
Catherine will weave a mat. They will play football.	A mat will be woven by Catherine. Football will be played. ✓ Football will be played by them. ×

Imperative sentences

(The imperative sentences begin with: Let.... when used in the passive voice)

Active voice	Passive voice
Bring that radio. Take this saw away	Let that radio be brought. Let this saw be taken away.

Close that door. Clean this house.	Let that door be closed. Let this house be cleaned.
---------------------------------------	--

Complex sentences

Complex sentences that comprise the doer, the place, the reason or purpose and time words follow this pattern:

Where + by whom + why + when, e.g.

- ✓ I will be trained in the music room by the choirmaster to play the keyboard.
- ✓ Nyamwiza is driven to school by her father to practise netball every morning.
- ✓ The maize in the store has been eaten by rats.
- ✓ A beautiful song is being sung in the room by the girls.
- ✓ Some animals are hunted in the game parks by poachers for their meat daily.

PREPOSITIONAL VERBS

A prepositional verb is a combination of a verb and preposition, e.g. shout at, think of, agree to, and so on.

In the passive voice, we end with the preposition.

Consider:

(a) They never shout at children.

Children are never shouted at.

(b) They will agree to it.

It will be agreed to.

Rewrite each item as instructed in the brackets.

1. They have already thought of that. (Begin: That...)

Aspect: English structure

USED FOR AND USED TO

Consider:

(a) A plane is used to smooth wood.

A plane is used for smoothing wood.

(b) A broom is used for tidying the compound.

A broom is used to tidy the compound.

NB: Used to may be used in the place of accustomed to.

(c) She is accustomed to taking hot coffee.

She is used to taking hot coffee.

Activity

Rewrite each of the following items as instructed in brackets.

1. We use a hammer to hit nails into wood. (Begin: A hammer is used for ...)

25. A saw is used for cutting wood. (Use ... used to ...)

Aspect: English structure

FIRST ... NEXT ... THEN

This structure shows the sequence order of actions.

It is a good thing to use the guide words in brackets to construct the sentence.

NB: You use a comma before next and before then.

Consider:

(a) You need to plane the wood. You must cut it into pieces and use wood glue to fix them together.

First you need to plane the wood, next you must cut it into pieces, then use wood glue to fix them together.

9 Fell the tree down using a chainsaw. Cut the felled tree into pieces. Dry it gently.

10 Say your night prayers humbly. Make your bed. Go to sleep.

Aspect: English structure

BESIDES AND APART FROM

Besides means apart from or in addition to.

Do not confuse this with beside which means next to.

Besides can appear at the beginning and within a sentence.

NB: Do not repeat the (same) verb that modifies different objects when using besides, apart from and would rather.

Use ‘being’ with besides only when joining two adjectives or two job titles.

Consider:

(a) The carpenter made a table. He made a chair.

Besides a table, the carpenter made a chair. ✓

Besides a table, the carpenter also made a chair. ✓

The carpenter made a table besides a chair. ✓

(b) Isabirye keeps goats. He also keeps sheep.

Aspect: English structure

THOUGH

You use though to express a contract just like but.

It is not correct to use but after though.

Though clauses can appear at the beginning or within a sentence.

You begin with the main clause when you use a though clause within the sentence.

Consider:

(a) Game meat is tasty but many people don't like it.

Though game meat is tasty, many people don't like it.

Many people don't like game meat though it is tasty.

(b) Osbert is shy. He was voted the chairperson at the meeting.

Though Osbert is shy, he was voted the chairperson of the meeting.

Osbert was voted the chairperson of the meeting though he is shy.

Note: You can replace though with any of the following conjunctions:

✓ much as

✓ although

✓ even though

✓ whereas

✓ in spite of

✓ despite

In spite of and despite are usually followed by the fact that...

(c) Game meat is tasty, but many people don't like it .

Despite the fact that game meat is tasty, many people don't like it.

Many people don't like game meat despite the fact that it is tasty.

In spite of the fact that game meat is tasty, many people don't change it.

Many people don't like game meat in spite of the fact that it is tasty

POEM

Read the poem below carefully and then answer in full sentences the questions that follow.

You create with your hands
Comfortable seats for us
Both in the classroom and home
We enjoy sound sleep
Because of your effort.

When it rains
We are covered by the roof
Your excellent work
Bring joy and happiness
Sunshine and storm are not a worry

The teachers too enjoy your services
They comfortably mark books
And prepare work for us
Where would we be without you?
You simplify life for everyone.

With sandpaper you smooth wood
You drill nails into the wood
Fix the joints with wood glue

And with varnish our furniture shines
Only to come up with good products
(Akoth Ann)

BAKER'S MELODIES

Squirrel Mama gave me a shake

Your breakfast I just did make

Would it be nut or a cornflake?

What did she bake?

Could it be a Christmas fruit cake?

Or sweet cold chocolate milkshake?

Or a hot oozing corn pancake?

What did she bake?

Hoping for a juicy strip steak

Image of that on the uptake

I opened my eyes, now awake

What did she bake?

I began to quiver and quake

Squirrel Mama knows how to bake!

Buttermilk muffins all she does make

What did she bake?

(Jane Baker, P.6 Flavour)

Activity

Below is a conversation between Jonathan, a primary seven pupil, and Mr Mwebe the baker. Study it carefully and fill in what you think we're Jonathan's words.

Jonathan: _____

Mr Mwebe: Good morning, young boy. I have seen you around for some time. How can I help you?

Jonathan: _____

Mr Mwebe: Why would you like to get some skills in baking cakes? Have you ever baked?

Jonathan: _____

Mr Mwebe: Who taught you about baking last year?

Jonathan: _____

Mr Mwebe: What a good teacher of English you have! This is a very profitable job. How was the lesson?

Jonathan: _____

Mr Mwebe: How interesting and educative was it to you?

Jonathan: _____

Mr Mwebe: Great! You learnt how to make bread and after you ate it. That was interesting and educative. Did you make cakes?

Jonathan: _____

Mr Mwebe: Oh sorry! I am ready to help you since it is the reason you have been hanging around. Which class are you?

Jonathan: _____

Mr Mwebe: Oh! What a serious candidate you are! I am going to teach you free of charge.

Jonathan: _____

Mr Mwebe: No, you don't need to carry any ingredients for this lesson. Just come with a book and a pen. I wish you a good lesson tomorrow.

Jonathan: _____

ADJECTIVES

Adjectives are descriptive words.

An adjective tells more about a noun or pronoun.

Consider:

- A tall building
- A domestic animal
- A beautiful girl
- Violet eyes
- A wooden table

POSITIONS OF ADJECTIVES

Attributive position

This is when an adjective comes before a noun.

Most adjectives are used in this position, e.g.

✓ She is holding a dangerous weapon.

✓ I don't like stony rice.

✓ He is a brainy man.

✓ I bought a woollen blanket.

✓ We came across a fierce dog.

Predictive position

This is when an adjective comes at the end of a sentence, e.g.

✓ The weapon she is holding is dangerous.

✓ I don't like the rice since it is stony.

✓ That man is brainy.

✓ The blanket I bought was woollen.

✓ The dog we came across was fierce.

DEGREES OF ADJECTIVES

Simple degree

This is also known as positive degree.

You use the simple degree to talk about one noun or pronoun.

Consider:

- Milly is a brown girl.
- Ashiraf is a tall boy.
- I own fat sheep
- BBC is a nice radio.
- The house has a smooth surface.

Comparative degree

You use the comparative degree to compare two sides, people, things, etc.

This degree is usually followed by than.

At times, this degree is preceded by the.

Consider:

- Maryam is smarter than Jessica.
- A kitten is more playful than a puppy.
- Of the dual, the first one is the better.
- The longer he walked, the farther he reached.

Superlative degree

You use the superlative degree to talk about more than two parties, people or things.

It is preceded by the.

Consider:

- Pigs are the fattest animals on the farm.
- Rwanda is the smallest country in East Africa.
- Solomon was the wisest man in history.
- A whale is the largest animal in the world.
- The best team won the match.
- Yusuf was the handsomest man of all times.

FORMATION OF ADJECTIVES

A preposition

Aspect: English grammar

DIRECT AND INDIRECT SPEECH

Direct speech

Direct speech has two parts i.e. the speech tag and the quoted words enclosed by inverted commas. It presents the speaker's exact words.

Examples of speech tags

- ✓ said Lewis
- ✓ Lewis said
- ✓ say Mr Musisi
- ✓ doctors recommend
- ✓ reported the journalist
- ✓ my aunt recalled

Consider:

- (bb) "I am learning French now," Lewis said.
- (cc) Lewis said, "I am learning French now."
- (dd) "My favourite fruit is banana," she said.
- (ee) She says, "I am ill."
- (ff) "Will you go to the party with me?" she asked me. "Yes," I replied.
- (gg) 'We shall go to Dubai this weekend,' said Allan.
- (hh) "I shall use this dictionary tomorrow," said Danielle.
- (ii) "The sun rises in the east," said our teacher.
- (jj) "Where were you yesterday?" the man asked his daughter.
- (kk) "Who is the owner of this cable?" asked Rosetta.
- (ll) "Who is the owner of this cable, Cynthia?" asked Rosetta.

Indirect speech

Indirect speech is also known as reported speech. It usually has three parts i.e. the speech tag, the conjunction that and the said words in the past tense. At times, that may be left out.

NB: Geographical, scientific, religious, social, academic, biological or natural facts are never reported in the past tense.

When this in the speaker's statement is referring to an object (this watch, this dictionary, this bag, this dress etc.), it changes to the.

When this in the speaker's statement is referring to time (e.g. this day, this morning, this night, this week, this year, this month etc.), it changes to that.

When the tense introducing reported speech is in the present, the whole report remains in the present.

When using ... wanted to know ..., and there is a noun of direct address, make sure you say wanted to know from.

Indirect speech does not use inverted commas, quotation marks or exclamation marks i.e. the actual words are never quoted.

Consider:

- (mm) Lewis said that he was learning French then.
- (nn) She said that her favourite fruit was banana.
- (oo) She says that she is ill.
- (pp) "Water boils at 100°C," Mubiru said. (Drop the quotes)
Mubiru said that water boils at 100°C.

QUESTION TAGS

Question tags are also known as tag questions.

Question tags are formed using helping verbs and pronouns.

A question tag aims at a yes or no short response.

Note: The general rule: Positive statement = Negative tag and vice versa.

If a positive statement is given, simply insert not.

If a negative statement is given, simply drop not.

When a noun of direct address is mentioned in the statement with Let followed by a direct object, then the statement is an order, a request or a directive. The tag is ..., will you?

Consider:

- (a) John isn't a girl, is he?
- (b) Suzan was a teacher, wasn't she?
- (c) We like reading storybooks, don't we?
- (d) They will not look it up in a dictionary, will they?
