52. Read the passage below carefully and answer the question that follow in full sentences.

Children play games and sports at school. They also do other activities like Music, Dance and Drama. This is the beginning of the future professions as a result of developing talents. It is interesting to see pupils perform their best in co-curricular activities. These activities are sources of entertainment and excitement especially when there are competitions among houses, clubs and schools.

The different groups with their captains, coaches, choir teachers sometimes exchange words with referees, umpires and judges over who should take the trophies.

Children as participants should be free to join groups of their choices. This is when they can perform to their best. When one looks at the best winning groups, one will realize that the members who form the team share common interests, for instance, while the choristers enjoy the music, the footballers will have another fun. This confirms the saying "Birds of same feather -------

In 2010, for instance, South Africa hosted finals of the World Cup. South Africa got a lot of money and fame from tourism, hotel businesses and transport. This achievement is a result of developing talents at an early stage for future investment.
