SECTION A

Answer all items

ITEM 1

In 2025, economic historians from different African countries met in Accra to discuss the transformation of African economies after the abolition of the trans-Atlantic slave trade. During the conference, participants observed that many African societies successfully adjusted to the changing economic environment by promoting legitimate commerce, expanding agriculture and encouraging local industries.

The Kingdom of Asante was highlighted as one of the states that attempted to reorganize its economy in response to changing international trade patterns.

Task

Assess the measures that African states adopted to transform and strengthen their economies following the abolition of the trans-Atlantic slave trade.

ITEM 2

A symposium on colonial administration was organized at the University of Dakar in Senegal. During the discussions, scholars examined the different methods used by European powers to govern their colonies in Africa.

Particular attention was given to the French policy of Assimilation. Some participants argued that the policy aimed at promoting civilization and administrative efficiency, while others viewed it as a tool for extending French political, economic and cultural domination.

Task

Using relevant examples, explain why the French adopted the policy of Assimilation in their African colonies and assess its impact on African societies.

ITEM 3

In preparation for an international conference on political change and democratic reforms, historians studied revolutionary movements that transformed Europe during the nineteenth century. One movement that attracted considerable attention was the Revolutions of 1848. Scholars noted that economic hardships, political exclusion and social inequalities contributed significantly to the outbreak of revolutionary activities across Europe.

Task

Examine the major causes of the Revolutions of 1848 in Europe and assess their impact on European political development.

SECTION B*PART I

Answer one item

ITEM 4

During a historical conference held in Paris, scholars examined the motives that influenced European powers during the Scramble for Africa. Particular attention was given to France, which acquired extensive territories in West and Central Africa.

Participants observed that economic interests, strategic considerations, national prestige and international competition all contributed to French expansion.

Task

Explain the reasons that motivated France to acquire large territories in West and Central Africa during the Scramble for Africa.

OR*ITEM 5

University students studying imperialism organized a public debate on the causes of European colonial expansion in Africa during the nineteenth century.

Some participants argued that industrialization was the most important factor, while others emphasized political rivalry, missionary activities and strategic interests.

Task

Assess the motives behind European imperialism and colonial expansion in Africa during the nineteenth century.

PART II

Answer one item

ITEM 6

In 2025, world leaders gathered at the United Nations Headquarters to commemorate eighty years since the end of the Second World War. During the discussions, speakers reflected on the factors that contributed to the outbreak of the war and the consequences that followed.

Many participants argued that understanding the history of the Second World War is essential for promoting international peace and preventing future conflicts.

Task

Examine the causes, major events and consequences of the Second World War and assess the lessons that modern nations can learn from it.

OR

ITEM 7

A conference on international relations was organized to examine global tensions after the Second World War. Historians noted that although the United States and the Soviet Union never fought directly, their rivalry influenced political, economic and military developments across the world.

Participants observed that the Cold War shaped international alliances, conflicts and diplomatic relations for several decades.

Task

Assess the causes, major events and consequences of the Cold War and examine its impact on international relations.
